

COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT GUIDELINES

Welcome to the MumsVillage Community

Whether you are a parent, thinking about parenting, or just curious, feel at home at MumsVillage. We value your presence and contribution to our community where everything about parenting is discussed, shared and saved.

We welcome all, no matter what stage of the parenting journey you are on. Stories about preparation for parenthood, trying for babies, discovering your pregnancy; and babies loved and lost. Little Ones learning to crawl and walk; from daycare to school; through the tween years into the teen years and beyond. As a member of MumsVillage you have the right to share your unique parenting stories on your unique parenting journey.

As you understand, every close-knit village has its protocols and cultural expectations. To preserve the unity that MumsVillage communities enjoy, we have formulated the following guidelines for our members. Kindly refer to our Content Restrictions and Terms of Service for a deeper understanding of our standards.

Safety

It's important that you remember that everything you read in our community areas comes from other members.

As MumsVillage may not be able to monitor or verify the information posted by each and every member. Please take reasonable caution about what you post and take care not to offend members of your group. We will however rely on you as individual members to keep us informed of violations and offenses should you feel that action is necessary.

The information posted on community groups, including advice and opinions related to medical matters, is the responsibility of the members who create the posts. You will be responsible for verifying such information to avoid harm to you or your children.

Do not take advice from other members without verifying or checking in with an expert on the relevant and respective issues. Should you or someone you know have an adverse reaction to a medication or medical device, it's important that it be reported to the team and to your health provider.

Rules

In order to keep this a place where differences in philosophies, beliefs, opinions, and parenting styles are welcomed please help us by following these simple rules:

1. Personal attacks are unacceptable. Neither are ethnic, racial or gender-related slurs.
2. Hate speech is not permitted.
3. Do not deliberately disrupt the community.
4. Bullying or harassment will not be tolerated.
5. Illegal activity is not allowed on the site.
6. No sexually explicit material.
7. Don't solicit or reveal personal information or private content
8. No soliciting, advertising or marketing, except in designated spaces.

Our Rules of Engagement apply to all of your participation in all areas, public and private, on our website.

MumsVillage reserves the right to ban any member at any time for any reason, with or without warning.

We have no obligation to delete content that you find personally objectionable or offensive. We reserve the right to remove any content we deem inappropriate for our site, with or without warning. We reserve the right to modify these rules with or without notice at any time.

By participating in our community you are agreeing to abide by the spirit and letter of the guidelines above, and to submit to their interpretation and enforcement by our staff. MumsVillage staff will enforce the community guidelines.

Violations of these Rules of Engagement may result in your membership being blocked or banned from participating in any or all areas of our community and/or your membership being closed and/or your content removed from our site.

Group owners may place supplemental rules within their group; those rules do not override the community guidelines and MumsVillage Staff will not enforce those supplemental rules.